

CHEM 351: Project-Based Laboratory: Instrumental Chemical Analysis

This is a project-based laboratory course focusing on the fundamental and practical aspect of analytical instrumentation typically employed in chemical and biochemical research laboratories. Through assigned projects, students will make new organic and inorganic compounds and apply various instrumental methods for separation, purification, and identification.

Units: 3

Prerequisites:

CHEM 150

CHEM 150L

Program: Chemistry